

MATRIX ON POINT
Religion in the Age of Information

November 2, 2021, 12:00pm Pacific

Virtual Event. Register for a Zoom Link

Religion, as we know it, is being reframed, reshaped, and even replaced. This panel will focus on how digital technologies are transforming both religious doctrines and practices in contemporary society.

Jointly organized by Social Science Matrix and the Berkeley Center for the Study of Religion (BCSR), and co-sponsored by the Berkeley Center for New Media (BCNM), this event is presented as part of the Matrix on Point discussion series, which promotes focused, cross-disciplinary conversations on today's most pressing contemporary issues. These thought-provoking events are free and open to the public.

Panelists

- Steven Barrie-Anthony, Research Associate, Berkeley Center for the Study of Religion; Director, Public Theologies of Technology and Presence
- Kelsy Burke, Associate Professor of Sociology, University of Nebraska, Lincoln
- Erika Gault, Assistant Professor of Africana Studies, University of Arizona
- Heather Mellquist Lehto, Postdoctoral Fellow, Center for the Study of Religion and Conflict, Arizona State University
- Carolyn Chen (moderator), Associate Professor of Ethnic Studies, UC Berkeley; Co-Director, Berkeley Center for the Study of Religion

Register: <https://matrix.berkeley.edu/events>